My favorite objects are a cozy blanket, a worn-out book, a vintage watch and an old painting.

The blanket is soft and warm, perfect for chilly evenings. It is a beautiful, light-blue and wollen blanket that makes me feel relaxed everytime I wear it.

The book is chesrish, rectangular and old with Scottish popular stories. Its pages are yellow and they smell like history. Its cover is faded, showing signs of many late-night readings. Every time I open it, I feel like I'm in a different world of imagination and wonder.

The vintage watch is elegant and timeless. Its chain is delicate, silver, metallic and very resistant. It ticks softly, reminding me to appreciate each moment; it's a symbol of memories and precious moments.

There's also an 100-years-old painting on my wall that I really like. Its colors are soft and faded, which makes it feel nostalgic. The painting shows a calm countryside with big green hills and a small English village far away. Each stroke of the brush tells a story, and when I look at it, I feel peaceful. It's not just a painting; it's like a window to another time, reminding me of how beautiful nature is.

These objects may seem ordinary to some people, but to me, they hold special meaning and bring comfort and joy to my life every day.
