Read the conversations out loud .
Which of the marked words is an adjective: an adverb:

- Would you pick up a person who was drunk and emotionally assaultive?
- Do it every day. But I guess, yes, if the person was a friend.
- Good answer. Your mother raised you well.

Read the extracts.

- I know I said hurtful things that I'm not proud of. But the reason I got so drunk that I said all that stuff is because it was the shittiest day of my life. Frankie, um..., I didn't break up with Phil like I said I would.... I went to a hotel and we spent the night together.... Well, say something....
- I'm sorry, what?
- Frankie, I slept with Phil. Then we broke up. I'm probably never gonna see him again.
- I'm sorry you're suffering. But that was not an apology, that was just an excuse for your bad behavior.

My nearest and dearest,
I'm the happiest person I know.
This is the sanest decision
I have ever made.

Read the extracts. As or So?

- You know, I might have said some terrible things to her, but I was drunk. I didn't mean it.
- Oh, really? Did you know in North Korea they use vodka truth serum?

Oh, Mallory.
I hate to see you feeling this way.
I am sorry if my behavior
has had anything to do
with your anxieties right now.
I promise you, not all men cheat.

- My dear Frankie. You are precious to me!
- I'm a very special person.

I'm grateful to have so many wonderful people
from my life in the same room!
