In many countries today, if people want to find work, they have to move away from their families and friends.Do you think the advantages of this development outweigh the disadvantages?

Introduction

In our today's competitive labor market, the ..... (necessary) for jobseekers to relocate with a ..... to securing employment is becoming ..... (increase) common, which may lead ..... a separation from their traditional support of family and friends. I am convinced ..... this phenomenon, despite its potential disadvantages, brings ..... far more significant benefits.

Disadvantages

..... the one hand, the decision to move for work is not without its drawbacks. There is a persuasive .....(argue) that relocating for work .....(inevitable) leads to the emotional toll of separation ..... loved ones. An example of this is the common case when young professionals move to urban centers, leaving ..... their parents in rural areas, which often results ..... emotional distress and guilt. ..... addition, advocates of this view point out that the .....(finance) hurdles of moving is unavoidable. For example, ... (prohibit) prices of accommodation in such cosmopolitan cities as Hanoi or Ho Chi Minh City in Vietnam, can .....(eventual) be a heavy financial burden.

LIVEWORKSHEETS