VOCABULARY PRACTICE

Let's listen to the recording again and fill in blanks below

Hi everyone, and welcome to Sydney Airport. Today, I'll be giving you the inside information on the day-to-day 1 of the Australian Quarantine Service here. We hope to provide you with a better 2 of why such heavy security 3 are necessary by 4 you on how we operate and why we do the things we do. We're not here to try to persuade you to fly through Sydney Airport, though we hope you'll find your experience 5 stress-free and comfortable.

First things first, our 6 . Can anyone guess how many people work at Sydney Airport? We have 200 alone working in Terminal 2, so can you guess how many in the whole airport? I heard someone say 360, that's getting 7 ... What? Did someone say 2,000? That's way too high. Sydney Airport actually 8 440 people. A lot, right? And about half of those employees work in security-related matters.

Moving on to our not-so-human employees, let's come and see our favourite pooch, Milton. Milton is our best drug-sniffing dog on the force. He's friendly to most people – you can even come pet him at the end of our tour. Burnouts 9 , though, he'll find everything. Notice that even though there are so many of us around him, Milton stays quite calm. This is the precise reason he was chosen for the job. Dogs that are chosen are not 10 to sniff out different narcotics – that's something we teach them already.

So here's a part of the airport most people never notice – the cargo transport terminal. This is where 11 are shipped to and from. Normally we ship around 4,400 packages per month. In this airport alone, over 52,000 packages were 12 in and out over the past year. We ship to and from 170 different countries. Not bad, eh? Probably it will go up to over 72,000 packages this year. And despite over 100 flights in and out of here daily, the number of lost or 13 packages is 14 low. If you send your package through here, rest 15 we'll get it where it's going.

Let's move on to the area most of us are familiar with, the passenger terminals. In order to be 16 into this area, you must pass through security with your ticket and if you're travelling 17, your passport. If you're travelling 18, you just need a legal form of ID. If you don't have those, you will not be allowed to pass through security and board your flight.

During the security scan, your carry-on items will be checked for dangerous items such as weapons, sharp objects, and liquids that 19 our specified limit. If you attempt to pass any of the 20 items on this list posted at the entrance, you are still allowed to board the plane, but you'll be given a warning and your item will be 21. Don't worry, we will not arrest you for having too much shampoo in your bag, or anything like that.

We also search your carry-ons and parcels for any 22 items. We prohibit the transportation of local vegetation and prohibit parcels containing any insects in them. You may or may not have learned about this in Biology class, but when some plants are introduced to a new environment, they spread 23 and wipe out the current species around it. It is important to control the introduction of new plants into an 24, so we must prohibit the transport of any fertile seeds.

So what happens to parcels containing possibly 25 items? It's of course something we do not take lightly here. If an object passes through the scanner that appears suspicious in any way, it is separated out for 26 search by a member of our trained security personnel. If an illegal plant or simple sharp object like a pocket knife is found, it is simply 27 of in our bio-hazard waste containers, and the package itself is 28 to the sender (or passenger, if it is for a passenger flight). More serious weapons are reported to higher 29 for 30.
