II. Read the following text and tick (✓) in the box.

An eco-house

This 'earth shelter' house is built into the ground. It is made from recycled materials that the owners found in the rubbish tip. They used local materials like stone, metal, wood and mud too! The walls are made of stone and mud and they used wood to make the roof. This eco-house uses natural resources like water and energy efficiently.

It has a wood burner to heat the house and big windows to let in natural light. It also has solar panels to provide energy for heating and lighting, and earth and grass on top of the roof to keep the house warm. Outside, there is a large tub to collect water when it rains, and for watering the vegetable garden in the summer.
