Birth, marriage, and death

1 Match the statements (1–3) with the responses (a–c).

1 I'm having a baby!	a What a shame!
2 She died last night.	b Congratulations!
3 They split up after the party.	c I'm so sorry.

2 What colours do you connect with births, marriages, and death in your culture? Why? Do you know of any other cultures that have different colours connected with these life events?

3 Read the texts quickly and look at the pictures. Add the heading Birth, Marriage, or Death to each text 1–3.

1

One of my neighbours, Mr Marsh, died yesterday. When he was alive, he did a lot for the environment. His wife died a year ago, so his children are arranging for him to have a 'green' funeral in a forest close to his home. They are also going to plant a tree for him.

2

Daisy's expecting a baby boy and he's due in three months. Her first baby was born in hospital. I think she had a tough time because it was very noisy and she couldn't sleep. She wants to have this baby at home and try a water birth this time.

3

James and Clare split up a month ago. I can't believe it! They started going out when they were at university and they only got married two years ago. They spent nearly £10,000 on the wedding, and had an expensive honeymoon, too. What a waste of money!

4 Read the texts again. Write the text numbers next to the statements.
