Read the texts below. Match choices (A— H) to (1 — 6). There are two choices you do not need to use. Write the clue for each answer.

1 In the UK, there is a two-floor house of 28 square feet. The first storey has a bedroom and shower, and the second floor has a living room and kitchen. It is assumed that only one person can live in the house, though currently a nice young couple of farmers is renting it. What is more, the house has an orchard in the back yard.

2 The appearance of the smallest building in Salzburg with a facade only one and a half meters wide has a connection to an ancient romantic history. A girl agreed to marry her lover, only when he has his own dwelling. The young man was very poor but resourceful, and he placed his house in the space between two existing houses. As a result, there was a place for an oven and three chairs, which served as a tiny bed for the family.

3 This one-meter wide and ten-meter tall house was built in Brazil. The house has three floors, with two living rooms, three bedrooms, a kitchen and a veranda. At the beginning of the building, the local authorities wanted to ban construction but changed their minds. Nowadays, this multi-storey house is one of the main touristic attractions of the city.

4 Perhaps one of the smallest homes in the world is in the United States. Its area is only 6 square meters. It has a kitchen with a fridge, a shower and a sleeping area located in the attic. The house comes with a special platform trailer for transportation, hence the owner can easily move from one location to another.

5 The residents of Amsterdam are never tired of repeating that it is the smallest building in their city. However, this is not entirely true. The fact is that the rise of the building tax on the house directly depended on the width of the facade. That's why the resourceful owner built a complete house with a facade of 1 meter 1 centimeter, which, in fact, is just an entrance.

6 Not exactly a house, but this small round concrete thing is actually a hotel room at a hotel called «Das Park Hotel» located in both Austria and Germany. The rooms have a double bed; next to the beds are small storage areas that contain more pillows and sheets. They have placed outlets in them for electronics, and there is a small space under the bed that is used to place customer's luggage. All the rooms are usually sold out a half of the year in advance.
