FRIENDS WE ALL NEED

Best friends are important, but research shows that we need a variety of different friends to be happy. Here are the five friends you really need.

- 1 This friend is your biggest fan. They always have time to hang out with you and really care about you. He or she is a good listener and loves to help you to deal with problems, even small ones. What's more, they will always support you no matter what, so you can always count on them.
- 2 This friend will always tell you the truth, even when it hurts. They don't want to listen to you complain about your family or your homework. They'll tell you to stop whining and deal with it. It is not that they are not interested. They feel this is the right way to help you. This friend will surely make you a better person, even if sometimes you think they aren't on your side.
- 3 We don't always go to the same school as our best friends, but that doesn't mean you have to sit on your own. Make friends with your classmates. It will be easy because you already have something in common: your school. Do it and you'll have someone who understands your homework problems and you'll definitely enjoy your lessons more.
- 4 It isn't easy to try something new, especially when you love hanging out with your friends watching a film and eating your favourite snacks. That's why this friend is so important. They're always ready to experience new activities, cultures and places. Routine is good, but remember: there is a big world out there to explore.
- 5 We can learn from teachers, parents and brothers and sisters. But we can also learn from our friends. This friend doesn't have to be older than you. They just need to be really good at something and have some skills, knowledge or experiences to share. Join a club or start a new hobby. You'll meet plenty of people to choose from.

So, how many of these friends have you got?
