People and Plastic

Everyone knows we use too much plastic these days. Do we use it more than in the past? Well, 50 years ago, my grandmother took her sandwiches to school in paper bags, and grocery stores had paper bags to carry groceries. About 30 years ago, plastic shopping bags became popular, and my parents took their sandwiches to school in plastic. About ten years ago, we started to take our own shopping bags to the grocery store and to use plastic bags more than once. But we had more cars, phones, and electronic equipment than before, so we still used more plastic.

One of the biggest problems with plastic is that it gets in the ocean and kills sea animals. However, plastic in the ocean is not a new problem. There was already plastic in the ocean in the 1960s. The problem became worse in the 1980s when people started to use more plastic than before. In the 2000s, people knew plastic was a serious problem.

It seems we need plastic. We can't work or study without phones and computers. We use 3D printing to make plastic models to help with health problems. Drinks come in plastic bottles, not glass. The way forward is to find a way to make plastic that is not bad for the environment.

What can we do? Maybe we can make plastic from plants. Some stores already sell things like coffee and salads in bowls and cups made from plastic like this. Scientists need to keep working on making plastic from plants so we can use them even more in the future.

There are other problems in the world too, like climate change and finding new kinds of energy. But we are making progress with plastic, and scientists are happy that the ocean is getting cleaner. I'm afraid it might still take a long time to find an answer to all the problems, but I hope we can work together and find a way to make our world healthy. I think we can.
