Bullying is hard to control and it affects millions of teenagers every day. In the past, it mostly happened at school or in public places, but nowadays the Internet makes it possible for bullies to reach their victims at home. We call it cyberbullying - when a bully teases or threatens someone online. Experts believe that almost all children and teenagers will experience bullying at some point in their lives.

Most people know that if someone bullies you, you can tell a teacher or a parent. (22)_____ what should you do if you see bullying happening to someone else? People (23)_____ try to ignore bullying become bystanders : they stand by and see bullying happen, but don't do anything to stop it. Sometimes bystanders are frightened of the bullies, or they're embarrassed about telling their parents or a teacher. (24)_____ reason is that they just feel confused about what to do. But if you don't do anything, bullies think that their behavior is not bad. They think that people don't mind, and more bullying happens. That's why we need to be up-standers. Up-standers say "no" to bullies because bullying is unacceptable!

Bullying is hard to stop - but together, we can stop it by being up-standers, not bystanders.
