

World's Teacher's Day

Who shapes the person you are the most? Parents or probably family members are probably at the top of the list for many people. But a close second place is very likely to go to teachers to thank for the success.

Bill Gate has thanked his teachers by saying, 'There's no way there would be a Microsoft without my teachers doing what they did.' Gates' Maths teacher, Fred Wright, asked him to push himself just a little bit harder. And his drama teacher, Anne Stephans, helped him to build his confidence when she made the sometimes uninterested school boy the star of the school play.

And he is not the only one. Oprah Winfrey, a talk show host, an actress and a TV producer, was inspired by her fourth grade teacher, Mrs Duncan. Oprah says, 'I felt, I could face the world because teachers create a love for learning that lives inside you. It is why I have a talk show today.'

So, if you have a teacher, you are one of the lucky ones. The chances are high that a teacher's words that have helped you achieve your successes, the dreams you have made come true or the difficult things you have survived. Perhaps you already know who that teacher will be. Why not find them and say thank you on World Teachers' Day?
