III. Read the following passage and choose A, B, C, or D to fill in the gaps:

Computerization has changed high school education in many ways. The first is the use of the computer as a teaching aid for teachers. The next is the massive data storage and fast data gain from computers. In the early 1980s only 20% of high school teachers in the US used computers. However, since then high schools in the US have computerized rapidly. In 1987, the school acquired about 1.5 million computers with 95% of the schools having at least one computer. At school, teachers can use a computer to bring texts, sound and pictures into a classroom. With a computer, they can more readily attract and retain students' attention. Computers can also speed up the teaching process and make difficult-to-explain ideas straight forward. This means that teachers can spend more time answering students' questions and catering for other needs. Computer software can shorten the learning process by illustrating real world applications of abstract theories.

26. What is the main idea of the text?

- A. Computers can not be used at school.
- B. Teachers are banned to use a computer.
- C. Computers can be used as a teaching aid.
- D. In 1980 there were no computers used for teaching.

27. According to the passage, which sentence is not true?

- A. Computerization is not done at high school
- B. Students can get data from computers.
- C. Teachers can use a computer as a teaching aid.
- D. Teachers can store data in a computer.

28. The word “they” refer to _____

- A. teachers
- B. students
- C. computers
- D. teaching aids

29. In 1987, _____

- A. No teachers could use computers
- B. 95% of the school had at least one computer.
- C. computers were not used as a teaching aid.
- D. all high schools had computers.

30. With a computer, _____

- A. nothing can be done for both teachers and students.
- B. students don’t have to learn their lessons.
- C. teachers must spend a lot of time explaining the lesson.
- D. teachers can speed up their teaching process.
