

Gary: Wow! The news is really cool! Let me read it for you. People around the world use one hundred million plastic bottles a day, but they recycle only half or less than half in some countries. A group of people in Taiwan made up Trashpresso. There, people recycle plastic bottles to make tiles!

Jane: We can make tiles with plastic bottles? Then, there might be less trash.

Gary: You're right. It can recycle fifty kilograms of plastic bottles in one hour. More than that, Trashpresso doesn't waste water or power. It recycles water and it uses power from the sun.

Jane: Sounds great!

Gary: Trashpresso was in Beijing, London and Tibet. It will be in North America.

Jane: I would also like to try making tiles with plastic bottles.

Gary: Ha! Ha! Right.

Jane: I can drink two bottles of tea in the morning and two bottles of juice in the afternoon. Then, I can collect a lot of plastic bottles and make a lot of tiles.

Gary: Oh, Jane! You are on the wrong track! Everybody should try their best to use as few plastic bottles as possible.

plastic 塑膠 recycle 回收 tile 磁磚 waste 浪費

- () 26. What is Trashpresso?
- (A) A new kind of drink.
 - (B) A movie about recycling.
 - (C) An easy but interesting game.
 - (D) A place for people to do something good for the earth.
- () 27. When Gary said You are on the wrong track!, what does he mean?
- (A) Jane's idea is not correct.
 - (B) Jane has good understanding of the news.
 - (C) Jane has great knowledge about plastic bottles.
 - (D) Jane can teach everybody her ways to help the earth.