FILM AT THE SCIENCE MUSEUM

Next on the programme, we're offering free tickets to go and see a brand new film called (14)..... The film, which tells you all about the plants and animals in that wonderful country, has won a prize at the national film festival – it's well worth seeing.

The film can only be seen at a fantastic new cinema that has just been completed inside the Science Museum in the city centre. It's showing this Sunday with (15)..... from midday onwards, with the last showing at five o'clock, two hours before the museum (16)..... So there's six times to choose from.

So why not take the whole family to the museum this Sunday - there's lots to do. Children will want to (17)..... to the basement where the computers are kept. I promise you they'll come away with all sorts of exciting pictures they've created.

Moving to the first floor, a working steam engine and a life-sized model of (18)..... are among the favourite exhibits, and these are popular with people of all ages, not just children.

And if you get thirsty or if you want to have lunch out, there's an excellent café with wonderful views of the city on the (19).....

Entrance to the museum is free on Sundays, but it would normally cost £3.25 to go and see the film. To get your free tickets, you should email this programme by midday on Friday. We've only got a (20)....., so the earlier you contact us, the more likely you are to get one. We'll then get back in email contact with you before 12 o'clock on Saturday if you've been successful.

So have a pencil and paper ready after this song.
