

■ Adjectives and adverbs

Position of adjectives

Before a noun

After verbs such as appear, be, become, feel, get, grow, look, seem, smell, sound, taste and turn

I love your new house.The material this dress is made out of feels rough.

Watch out!

- The verbs in the table above are not normally followed by adverbs. However, some of them can be followed by adverbs when the verb refers to an action.
✓ She looked angrily at the man behind the counter.
- After as, how, so, this (= so), that (= so) and too, adjectives come before the article.
✓ I could never live in as crowded a city as Tokyo. ✓ Tokyo's so/that crowded a city that I'd hate to live there.
✓ How crowded a city is Tokyo? ✓ I could never live in Tokyo – it's too crowded a city.
- Some adjectives only appear after a verb and not before a noun. These include adjectives beginning with a-, such as afraid, aghast, alike, alive, alone, asleep, awake, etc
✓ A boy was asleep in the street. ✗ There was an asleep boy in the street.

Position of multiple adjectives

When more than one adjective is used before a noun, they usually appear in the following order, sometimes separated by commas: judgement, size, shape, colour, origin, material, purpose

*We've got a lovely little wooden cabin in the mountains.
I love your long, red, Chinese, silk curtains.
What you need for your living room is a large oak dining table.*

Adjectives used as nouns

To refer to members of a general social group

We need to provide better housing for the poor.

To refer to members of a specific group

When the building collapsed, the injured were rushed to hospital.

To refer to some nationalities

The French have introduced new housing regulations in Paris.

Position of adverbs

There are three places in a clause where an adverb (or adverbial phrase) might appear: at the beginning, at the end and with the verb. Different kinds of adverb go in different positions, and some may go in more than one position.

Adverbs do not normally appear between a verb and its direct object.

✗ They built very quickly the house.✓ They built the house very quickly.

With verbs formed using auxiliary verbs, the adverb normally follows the (first) auxiliary.

✓ The town has always been popular with tourists.✓ Our house will probably have been decorated by the time you get there.

Adverbs of frequency (always, often, etc) follow auxiliary verbs and be and come before other verbs.

✓ I'm rarely in the city centre.

Connecting adverbs usually go at the beginning of a clause.

✓ I rarely go to the city centre.✓ We bought it as an investment; then, all the property prices in the area fell.

Comparisons

Comparative: to compare things or people that are different
Superlative: to compare one member of a group of people or things with the whole group

VERTICAL LIVING

In the 1950s and 60s, the tower block seemed to offer a solution to two problems. Firstly, houses built (1) earlier in the century, or even in the nineteenth century, were (2) longer suitable for people to live in. Secondly, an increasing population placed a great (3) more strain on available space. New, vertical tower blocks, able to house more people in a relatively small space (4) a horizontal street, started to appear. The more people got used to living in these structures, (5) more they would form the heart of communities, or so the thinking went.

Initially, these blocks were (6) popular than the old housing they replaced. They were (7) and away the (8) affordable alternative for many people, and they also offered excellent views.

However, these buildings soon became (9) attractive to residents as crime rose. It also became clear that a tower block was (10) like as friendly a place to live in (11) a traditional street. More often (12) not, residents in a tower block didn't interact with each other on a regular basis. Although modern tower blocks are making something of a comeback amongst young professionals, they still have a poor reputation in the minds of many people.
