

By now, you must have heard a great deal about bullying and its negative consequences. Unfortunately, the internet and text messaging have only _____ the severity of the problem, to the point where some societies have named it an epidemic. Maybe you have even experienced being a bully _____. There are many statements surrounding the subject of bullying, from some people blaming the bully for _____ own problems, to others who pressure schools and online sites to punish _____. Whatever the answer, we can help _____ by pushing to have more dialog on the subject. Avoiding and ignoring the issue has often been the status quo in the past. However, we can see that this has only made the problem worse. Without talking about the problem, we create a _____ where families and those suffering from bullying feel isolated and hopeless.