

1.- What does the author prefer to collect?

- a) Material possessions
- b) Photographs
- c) Memories of experiences
- d) Stories shared with loved ones

2.- Why does the author believe material objects are less important than memories?

- a) Objects are expensive
- b) Objects fade in importance over time
- c) Memories can be shared with loved ones
- d) Objects take up too much space

3.- What object did the author and his wife find before they got married?

- a) A remarkable seashell
- b) A rare photograph
- c) A piece of driftwood
- d) A unique stone

4.- Why is the abalone shell particularly meaningful to the author?

- a) It is valuable
- b) It reminds him of a trip to California
- c) It symbolizes tranquility and gratitude
- d) It was a gift from a loved one

5.- How does the author describe the appearance of the abalone shell?

- a) Small and plain
- b) Iridescent with emerald and silver colors
- c) Rough and unattractive
- d) Dull and cracked

"And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men"

6.- What does the author suggest about the objects that surround an individual?

- a) They indicate the individual's wealth
- b) They manifest what the individual holds dear
- c) They are mostly useless
- d) They are mostly for decoration

7.- What makes the author happiest regarding the objects that surround him?

- a) Objects that remind him of his achievements
- b) Objects that inspire him to think about the future
- c) Objects that remind him of people, places, and experiences
- d) Objects that are aesthetically pleasing

"And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men"

Colossians 3: 23