TRAVEL IN THE CITY – LESSON 4 STORY
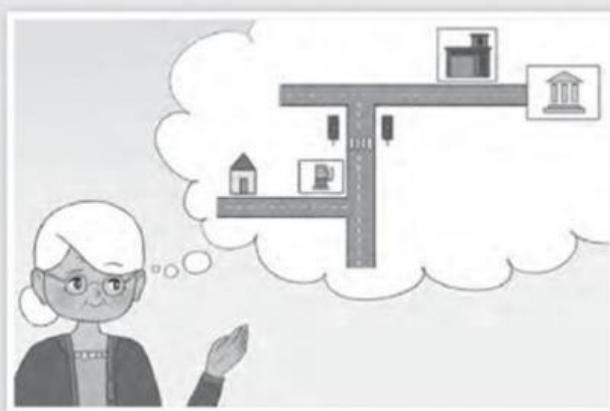

A. Read the story.

Learning to Help, Helping to Learn

1 Last month, Grandma Lu went to live with her family in the city. She loved her family, but she missed her friends from her old village. It wasn't easy to travel to see them. She was sad.

2 Lu's grandson had an idea.
"Why don't you call your friends on the computer?" said Shen.
"I've never done that before," she said.
"I can show you!" Shen said.

3 "Shen," called Shen's mom. "It's eleven o'clock!"
"Sorry, Grandma, I have to leave now," Shen said.
"I'm going to the museum."
"Thank you for helping me, Shen," said Lu.
Shen looked worried. "I've never been to the museum before. I don't know where it is," he said.
"I can tell you!" said Lu. "It's downtown. First, turn left at the gas station. Then wait at the traffic light and go across the crosswalk. Turn right and go straight ahead. Go past the fire station."

4 Shen smiled. "That's amazing!
You've only lived here for one month and you know all that."
Lu laughed. "You helped me learn, Shen, and now I've helped you, too."
