The Country Girl and the City Boy

Ella lives in the country. She thinks that it's boring. There are lots of fields, and there are no department stores or movie theaters.

Her cousin Samuel lives in the city. He thinks that it's noisy and dangerous. There aren't any trees or animals.

Ella visits Samuel. She likes the city. It's very interesting. "Your home is great!" she says. "But it's very noisy." Ella misses the fields and trees from the country.

Samuel visits Ella. "The country is beautiful!' he says. 'But it's very quiet." Samuel misses the movie theaters from the city.

They agree that the city and the country are both good.
