

Chapter 43

Branches of Science

The area of science is very vast. It deals with various aspects of our life. So, science has many branches. Each branch of science deals with a particular field.

Match the following branches of science with their descriptions :

1.	Psychiatry	(a)	The study of the internal parts of living organisms.
2.	Anatomy	(b)	Study of the process of extracting metals from their ores and their properties.
3.	Chronology or porology	(c)	Deals with the study of poisons, their effects and cures.
4.	Toxicology	(d)	The study of relations of animals and plants to one another and to their surroundings.
5.	Orthopaedics	(e)	The study of measuring time and fixing dates.
6.	Neurology	(f)	Deals with the collection and study of postage and revenue stamps.
7.	Ecology	(g)	Deals with the process of collecting coins and metals.
8.	Geography	(h)	The study of different types of sounds.
9.	Chromatics	(i)	Deals with the study of bones and muscles deformity.
10.	Philately	(j)	The study of mental disorders, its prevention and cure.
11.	Statics	(k)	The study of the earth, its features, inhabitants and various phenomena.
12.	Radiology	(l)	The science of colours.
13.	Acoustics	(m)	Studies nervous system, its functions and disorders.
14.	Psychology	(n)	Studies human nature and behaviour.
15.	Numismatics	(o)	Deals with the study of matter and forces at rest.
16.	Entomology	(p)	Deals with the study of insects.
17.	Metallurgy	(q)	Deals with the use of x-ray for diagnosis and treatment.

BOOST UP

- Vexillology is the scholarly study of flags.
- Speleology is the study of caves.

LIVEWORKSHEETS