High-tech treasure hunt

If you're a fan of hiking and you're into treasure hunts, then geocaching is the thing for you. Geocaching is an international treasure hunt that involves using your technology skills and GPS to find a 'geocache' – a box of treasures that people have hidden in a secret outdoor location.

You can look up information about where to find a geocache on the internet or there are also geocache smartphone apps. If you are successful and you find a geocache, you open the box, write your name in the notebook inside the box, you might swap a treasure in the box for something of the same or higher value, and then you return it to its original place.

A geocache is usually a small metal, wooden or plastic box that is protected from the cold and rain. Typically, it contains a notebook, which might be in a plastic bag to protect it, a pencil and small 'treasures' that aren't valuable, for example, a plastic toy, a seashell, dice and sunglasses.

It's a great activity to do with friends or family and is fun for all ages. There are over three million geocaches hidden all over the world in nature parks and cities. In fact, there might be a geocache not far from you right now!
