Xuan La is an old village located in Phu Xuyen District, Ha Noi. The village is famous for its traditional craft of making to he (tò he), a unique Vietnamese art form that has existed for over 300 years.

To he figurines are made from glutinous rice powder and come in various shapes, including animals, trees, flowers, and characters from folk stories. It is said that to he was originally made to be dedicated to the gods on festive days so the figurines often used to be in the shapes of animals.
