

SALUDOS EN ESPAÑOL

1. Watch this video in which a person explains and teaches the most common greetings in Spanish, some key questions to ask about how someone is doing and the way that you can answer them.

Video: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=lvkapUiY_wE&t=190s

2. Complete the next table with the possible answers (in some cases, more than one may fit).

When you already know someone (less formal) you say...
With your coworkers, classmates, boss, teachers (or even when visiting someone) it's better to say... (each one is used depending on the time)...
If you want to know how someone is doing, you ask (If you know more options than the most common one, you can put them here after that one):
To ask a person their name, you could ask:

How do you answer when someone asks you your name?
What are the most common answers to respond to "how are you doing"? ((both the positive and negative ones)).
Translate "Where are you from?" into Spanish.
How do you answer the "where are you from?" question?
Which word can you use to emphasize your mood in Spanish?

3. Having done that, you guys are going to work in groups of three in order to create a short but well-structured conversation to present in front of the class.
4. Finally, as a piece of advice, focus well on the video. Since there is vital information about Spanish grammar, if you answer the next final questions properly, you will obtain an extra point.

Extra-point questions - BUENA SUERTE 😊 (Break a leg- good luck!)

- What expression can mean both "good afternoon" and "good evening"?
- What happen with the questions marks in the Spanish language, do you use one or two?
- What about exclamation points?
