Paragraph Organization Answer

Directions I: Rearrange these sentences as logical sequences into a paragraph then write the suitable topic.

A. Students with cell phones that have Internet access know that information is readily available, so they might fail to memorize facts that they should learn.

B. Finally, cell phones can encourage cheating.

C. There are many reasons why cell phones should be banned in school.

D. If they are caught, they will face serious punishment, such as suspension.

E. In summary, schools should ban cell phones due to many disadvantages.

F. Second, cell phones at school interfere with learning.

G. Students can play games, take pictures, and send text messages during class by hiding their phones under their desks and turning off their ringtones.

H. Some students may try to text someone to get an answer to a question during a quiz.

J. First, cell phones distract students from their studies.

ANSWER:

A. In conclusion, you should stay away from these three types of salespeople.

B. He shares his personal experience as soon as you tell him what you want.

C. Finally, avoid the super-aggressive salesperson who pushes and pushes until you buy.

D. There are three kinds of salespeople who trick you into buying products.

E. Beware also of the second type of salesperson, the one who claims to be an "expert."

F. He has all the answers and can give you the best advice on what to buy.

G. The first type of salesperson is the one who pretends to be your best friend.

H. He tells you, for example, that the printer you want is only on sale today or that he has only one left in stock.

ANSWER:

LIVEWORKSHEETS