You might worry that part-time work will distract teenagers from studying. But doing a part-time job can have lots of benefits. In addition to earning extra pocket money, teenagers can develop their skills in teamwork and timekeeping. They can also get a reference from their employer when they apply for jobs and courses in the future.

Careers adviser Graeme Barrett says "Part-time work is a great opportunity. It gives them an understanding of the rules of the workplace and teaches good timekeeping, reliability, responsibility and working as part of a team. It also helps to build their confidence."

LIVEWORKSHEETS

Vacancies for young people looking for part-time work are mostly in shops, restaurants, cafes or fast-food outlets. There are often seasonal opportunities in the summer or at Christmas, when young people find jobs helping at parties and functions. Sometimes parents can help their children find work in their own workplace or through friends and family.

However, it's important to make sure that school work still comes first. Parents can help their children come up with a plan so they can manage their time and fit in studying, school, work and the other things they like to do such as sport and seeing friends or family.

Anita Roddick opened her own health and beauty shop, named The Body Shop, in her hometown of Brighton in 1976. The shop began trading with just 25 products. None of Roddick's products were tested on animals, and the ingredients were sourced directly from producers. She started a business with the motivation to simply "make a living for herself and her two daughters while her husband was away travelling." Today 'The Body Shop' is an international company rapidly growing all around the world.

The book written by Anita Roddick is about how to run a successful business without giving up what we really believe in. It is not a normal business book, nor is it just about her life. "The message of my book is that to succeed in business you have to be different. Business can be fun; a business can be run with love and it can do good. In business, as in life, I need to enjoy myself, to have a feeling of family and to feel excited by the unexpected. I have always wanted the people who work for 'The Body Shop' to feel the same way," said Anita Roddick. She finds it exciting that her book now sends these ideas of hers out into the world and makes them public.
