I(have) a problem with a boy in my class called Tony for a long time. Basically whatever I do, he copies me or he tries to do better than me. For example I(change) my hairstyle last Wednesday and he also.....(change) his to the same style, too, on Thursday. My favourite group is The Rock Roses and guess what – Tony(like) The Rock Roses too and he.....(see) them in concert next month, while I haven't got a ticket. It's getting worse – I was given a blue mountain bike for my last birthday and now he's got a similar bike, but the more expensive red one. I tried talking to him one day but all he(say) was 'I like your style and think you have great taste.' It's getting a bit creepy. I(not talk) to my teachers yet, Anyway, I(get) really fed up with it by now. I(told) my mum about it yesterday and she said 'I think it(pass) with time and he(stop) copying you.' but I don't believe her. Just this morning, I(walk) to school and suddenly he(walk) past me and I(see) he(carry) the same bag as me, which I only(buy) last weekend. What can I do?
Josh, Liverpool

- I think your mum is right. Relax. This boy will soon get tired of copying you. The best thing to do is ignore him. JohnJo, Glasgow

- I(not think) you should worry about this. It shows you have great taste. jenny 23, London

- The same thing happened to me. In the end it stopped when I(start) ignoring the person who was copying me. Try doing the same!... Sam2010, Cambridge
