UNIT 4: STORY ENDING

NAME/CLASS:

DIRECTION: Drag and drop the examples of the story ending and match them with correct the story ending techniques.

UNRESOLVED ENDING: let the readers make the endings with their own imagination.	TWIST IN THE TAIL: give surprises to the readers by giving the unexpected ending	TIE-BACK: end the story by tying it back to the beginning of the story

DRAG THESE EXAMPLES TO THE BOX

Roberta was never happier than that day. She finally could see her family again; people who were always there when she needed help. She walked towards them. Something felt strange, unusual. As she took another step closer, she saw something written on the stone, "In Memory of Roberta Willson. Loving wife and dearest mom."	There I was again… Staring at that painting one more time, realizing how life is not about waiting for the rain to stop, but to learn how to dance in the rain.	Lucas slowly put the doll in the wooden box. He knew it was the cause of all these problems. He put the seal back, and locked it. "I would never want to see that stupid toy again!" He sat down on the porch, sighed a relief. Just before his little sister, Emily, came and shouted in joy, "look what I found! It's a doll!"