The Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco is really orange, not gold. It gets its name from the bit of water between the San Francisco Bay and the Pacific Ocean, called the Golden Gate. The bridge is nearly three kilometres long. For a long time, it was the longest suspension bridge in the world.

In the USA in the 1930s there were a lot of people without jobs. President Roosevelt wanted to give work to them. The Golden Gate Bridge was one answer to the problem. Work on the bridge began on January 5th 1933. The designers were Charles Ellis, Joseph Strauss and Irving Morrow. It took 25 million hours to build the bridge so there was work for a lot of people. It cost $35 million dollars.

Work on the bridge finished on April 19th 1937. On May 27th 1937, the bridge opened for the first time and 200,000 people walked, climbed, skated or cycled across it. The next day it opened for traffic.
