Crime

People who break the law are called delinquents. When people commit crimes, it is called delinquency. If you commit a crime, you will be punished. Punishments can include paying a fine or going to jail.

If you are guilty of a serious crime, you could go to jail for a very long time or even get a life sentence. Some common crimes are theft, which is stealing something, and murder, which is killing someone. A person who steals is called a thief, and a person who murders is called a murderer.

Not everyone who is suspected of a crime is guilty. Sometimes, people are innocent. Other crimes include pickpocketing, which is stealing from people's pockets, and drunk driving, which is driving a car after drinking alcohol. A person who steals from pockets is a pickpocket, and a person who drives drunk is a drunk driver.

After carefully reading the previous lecture, answer the questions.

- What is a person who steals from pockets called?

a) A prayer
b) A murderer
c) A pickpocket

- What is a person who breaks the law called?

a) A delinquent
b) A police
c) A teacher

- What is the crime of killing someone called?

a) Theft
b) A murder
c) Pickpocket

- Is everyone who is suspected of a crime guilty?

a) Maybe
b) Yes, all the time
c) No, sometimes people are innocent

- What is the punishment for a serious crime?

a) Going to jail for a long time or a life sentence
b) Cleaning the city
c) Going to another country to learn your lesson

LIVEWORKSHEETS