

MATCHING THE WORDS IN THE BOX WITH THE TEXT

- Rabies is a serious disease.
- It affects the central nervous system of mammals and humans.
- It can give the victim fatal effect if the symptoms appear.

- Rabies virus spread through the saliva of infected animals.
- The most common way people get rabies is through animal bites, particularly from dogs.
- Animals can transmit rabies include bats, racoons, skunks and foxes.

- Rabies is a serious disease.
- It affects the central nervous system of mammals and humans.
- It can give the victim fatal effect if the symptoms appear.

- Rabies virus spread through the saliva of infected animals.
- The most common way people get rabies is through animal bites, particularly from dogs.
- Animals can transmit rabies include bats, racoons, skunks and foxes.

- Rabies is a serious disease.
- It affects the central nervous system of mammals and humans.
- It can give the victim fatal effect if the symptoms appear.

- Rabies virus spread through the saliva of infected animals.
- The most common way people get rabies is through animal bites, particularly from dogs.
- Animals can transmit rabies include bats, racoons, skunks and foxes.

Identification

Symptoms

Treatment

Effects

Prevention

Conclusion