- 1 Work in groups. You are going to read a text by a teenager about her shopping habits. Before you read, discuss these questions.
 - What are the advantages and disadvantages of shopping online?
 - Which do you prefer: online shopping or going to shops? Why?
- 2 Read the text in one minute, ignoring the gaps. Choose TWO letters that answer the question.

What does the writer buy on the internet?

A stationery
B clothes
C interactive games

How I like to shop

Some adults think that because teenagers spend so (0) time online, they probably also shop that way. That isn't actually true, at (1) not for me and my friends. I buy some things online though, such as pens and notebooks, and I get computer games that way too. It's very convenient, as I can order exactly (2) I want. There are no huge crowds of people to put (3) with either. And online stores don't have closing times, so it's perfect for me as a teenager who has (4) of hobbies at the weekend. However, I never buy T-shirts and stuff like that online, as you can't try anything (5) before you buy. Sometimes things look quite different (6) real life. A blue jumper might turn (7) to be green! I like the social aspect of going shopping for clothes. I'd much (8) spend time with friends in a shopping centre than sit at home in front of my computer.

- Answer the questions you find easy first.
- Pay careful attention to the meaning of the text to help you think of the right word.
- Answer all the questions. If you can't decide, think what type of word you need (preposition, pronoun, etc.) and guess.
- Check your answers by reading the completed text again. Make sure the words you have chosen go with the prepositions, verbs, etc. in the text.

- 3 Work alone. Think of the word which best fits each gap. When you have finished, compare your ideas with other students.
- 4 Work in pairs. Discuss these questions.

- Are there any things you would never buy online?
- What are your favourite shops to visit in town? What do you like about them?
- Do you think that we will still go to shops in the future?

1 Work in groups. You are going to read a true story written by a young woman called Eva. Look at the title of the text and choose the answer you think is correct: A, B or C.

Eva ...

A sold all her belongings to her relatives and friends.
 B gave away most of her possessions to people she knew.
 C gave away some personal items to complete strangers.

I GOT RID OF NEARLY EVERYTHING I OWNED!

1 When the people first came round they were all sitting around drinking tea nervously and occasionally glancing at the cupboards. I didn't like the atmosphere and found the whole situation 5 unsettling. I was beginning to wonder why I had asked these people round to go through my stuff and take what they wanted. Then my sister Louise arrived at the door. Without putting down her bag or saying hello, she headed for the bedroom, determination 10 on her face. She couldn't get there quick enough. 'I knew she'd be the competition!' cried my friend Rosa, jumping off the sofa and heading in the same direction. This is what happens when you open your home to friends, family and 15 neighbours, telling them they can help themselves to everything within it. Moments later, Rosa and Louise reappeared with armfuls of clothes and pot plants. I was surprised that they hadn't taken the whole lot.

Last month, I moved abroad for two years to study, 20 taking just a single suitcase with me. I couldn't afford to keep my flat, so when it came to my possessions, extreme measures were called for. Some of my stuff, like old novels and pairs of jeans, I could cope with giving away. But there was a list of things like 25 precious paintings and my childhood teddy bear that I couldn't bring myself to let go. I just wasn't up to that. So, I decided to offer these things up for long-term loan. It's not recycling, or even freecycling: I'm calling it 'sharecycling'. It was my beloved tent 30 that formed the premise of it. I made the decision as I thought about the pointlessness of putting stuff into storage for two years. Instead, I imagined someone I loved putting my tent onto their back and setting off into the countryside in the summer sunshine. I was 35 moving to the other side of the world, but this made it feel as though I would still, in some small way, be with my friends. And once I'd come up with the idea, it just grew and grew. I decided to give away everything – the plants on the balcony, the 40 computer games, the chairs, even the towels in the bathroom.

To get rid of it all, I had an open house, inviting everyone I knew to take my belongings. 'This is just like supervised stealing!' said one friend, as 45 she loaded books by the handful into a carrier bag. I became like a sales assistant. I recommended novels, waved toys at babies, and brought out coats and jeans for people to try on.

Now I am sitting in a flat on the other side of the 50 world as the last of the monsoon rains pour down outside, turning the pavements into mud and sending the street sellers sheltering under doorways and umbrellas. I feel very far from my home, and from my stuff. That list I made of the things I want back? 55 I'm not sure how much I'll need it. So far, I haven't missed any of my pictures, or that strange purse shaped like a mouse which I've had since I was seven years old. Instead, I've missed my family, my friends, and my city.

60 And my 'sharecycling' plan ties me back to them. A friend took my tent to a music festival. And my favourite picture ended up on the wall of my best friend's flat back home. This is what gives me a real buzz: the thought of all my bits and pieces in 65 my friends' lives, a physical reminder of our ties. It's like I've pressed 'pause' on my city life rather than 'stop', making the move easier. It shows I'm not ready to travel around the world forever with just a laptop.

- The answers to the questions come in the same order in the text, so, for example, you will locate the answer to question 2 after question 1.
- The final question may refer to the whole passage: in this case, consider the general message, but also skim the text for words which support your choice.

Reading and Use of English Part 7

You are going to read an article about young people who have started their own businesses. For questions 1–10, choose from the people (A–D). The people may be chosen more than once.

Which person

advises not giving up at an early stage?	1	<input type="checkbox"/> is doing something in a way they didn't expect?	2	<input type="checkbox"/> mentions an advantage they sometimes have over other people in their business?	3	<input type="checkbox"/> went through a period when they felt unable to cope?	4	<input type="checkbox"/>

realises that their fascination with their present business may not last?	6	<input type="checkbox"/> says their success has not followed a steady path?	7	<input type="checkbox"/> mentions how determined they are when they decide to do something?	8	<input type="checkbox"/> received positive encouragement to start their own business?	9	<input type="checkbox"/> became aware of how much knowledge they already had in a particular area?	10	<input type="checkbox"/>

I STARTED MY OWN BUSINESS

We talked to four young people who started successful businesses when they were teenagers

A Santiago has a business designing websites

I was going to do a course in graphic design when I left school but I started doing websites for some of my dad's friends when I was about 17 and realised I had acquired a lot of expertise from doing the school website. Since then I've hardly been without work. I once had a client who didn't find out my age until after they had hired me and they mentioned that they might not have hired me if they had known my age. But I've also often had clients who have done so because of my age so it can work in my favour. When I asked them why, they said it was because they wanted a 'fresh, younger approach' to business.

B Lucas started a magazine about skateboarding

I wanted to do something that nobody else around me was doing and I love writing so I started my own magazine. I'm like my dad – if he says he's going to do something, nothing will get in the way of that. I started the magazine when I was 13, so by the end of this year I'll have produced 24 editions in four years. At one point recently, I wondered if it was putting too much strain on me with homework and everything. I thought I might have to stop, despite the fact that the magazine was doing well, but I got through that by asking for help from my family and I bounced back. I'll move on to something else if I get bored with it – maybe a blog or something related – but for the moment I still find it inspiring.

C Yana has a business making videos of musicians

Young and inexperienced go together in a lot of people's minds but that's not the way I see it. It's a kind of prejudice. I've certainly come up against it and most young people will face some prejudice before anyone recognises their talent and expertise. When I left school I told my parents I didn't want to go to college. I wanted to be creative and make videos. They told me to give it a go and if it didn't work out after a year, I could reconsider my options. They thought I would always regret it otherwise. I'm not sure I would have gone ahead without them behind me. Some people say, 'This isn't a success and I've been trying for a week' but you have to give it more of a chance. Next month I will have been making videos for a year and they're now getting thousands of hits a day online.

D Annie has a photography business

You won't know until you try whether a business will work. It's like riding a roller coaster at the funfair. At every turn you take there is another twist to throw you off track. The lows for me have been low, but the highs can be really high and I'm now where I want to be. There will be times, though, when you need to accept advice. If you're still in or just through those teen years and you think you know everything, it's difficult to say to somebody 'You're right about that. How can I improve the way I'm doing this?'
