Fay Davis is an animal trainer. She is talking to trainee students about training dolphins. Put the verbs in brackets into the correct form.

The most important part of dolphin training is to establish trust between the animal and the trainer. Here are a few important things to remember: Dolphins should be taught to look above the water at a trainer. Only in this way 1) (we/can/ teach) them to respond to certain sounds or hand signals. Not until they've been trained for months 2) (they/will/be able) to perform tricks. Under no circumstances 3) (you/must/be) aggressive with the dolphins. Never 4)..... (we/punish) the animals; instead we give them treats when they perform well. As you have already seen, not only 5)(dolphin training/require) patience but determination as well.
