EZ Screen Fans 1 @LizaPrav

Lesson 1 /Grace And Frankie S1 Ep 3

goals

how to express the future
comparatives and superlatives past in context prepositions
common abbreviations

Read the conversations and put the verbs in brackets in the correct form.

- You do realize Coyote is going (be) there, right?
- Okay, I don't want to talk about Coyote.
- I know. I do, though. Is Mitch (come)?
- No, my husband will stay home with the kids when the babysitter suddenly (get) sick. You know what, maybe I'll get sick, too. Or maybe I'll just hang with Mom.
- If I'm (go) to this dinner, you're (go). And Mom can't know about this. If you breathe one word of this to Mom, I will (tell) her who really killed Dimples.
- Will you stop (throw) that fucking hamster in my face!

Read the conversations and fill in the table

- Well, would you at least let me take you to dinner?
- I wish I could... I've got a thing.
- A thing?
- Don't ask.
- FYI, childbirth was easier than getting out of that chair.

- See, we're going for a more youthful customer, and she's urban, and she's active, and she responds better to a plant than a face.
- I've been erased.
- I'm sorry, Mom. I should have told you.

basic	comperative	superlative least easier more youthful better

We use them in messages
FYI - For Your Information
OMG - Oh My God
BRB - Be Right Back

Read the conversations and put in «out», «into», «under» or «for».

If you had been fucking around with women the last 20 years, we wouldn't even be here eating cake!

Say, do you remember the way Grace used to fold the napkins bow-ties sometimes?

Up until a week ago I was the impression my parents loved each other. Now I'm losing my family I'm losing Jewish Christmas Eve, and picketing Walmart, and camping.

- Why wouldn't you tell them you were coming here?
- Are you really asking that?
- Yes! I am. They're going to find you came here and they're going to think we told you not to tell them, and they'll assume you're taking our side.

LIVEWORKSHEETS