Read the conversations and put in "will" or «will be».

- I'm quite sure that everyone there focused on celebrating Larry's life and not on us. Unless, of course, you insist on wearing those dreadful shoes, in which case, yes, everyone looking at us. Nobody looking at us.
- Of course they .

Read the conversations and put in "will" or «would».

- People always want to know how the left-behind wives are taking it. I mean, not you?
- I'm not like that.

I not want to upset Frankie.
And I definitely don't want to upset Grace.

Good, because we are staying in this line and not moving until we get to Sally. Then we tell her how much we loved Larry and get out of here.

- When I walk into Larry's house, everybody's going to look at me and say, "What a waste!"
- not they be saying that when you walk out?
- you just get dressed!
- I am dressed.

- I thought you were joking.
- Really? Why I joke about that? Why anyone joke about that?

It's from a time before famous people play gay in movies.

I'm not her. I always talk too loud and hug too much.

- Fine. I talk to Sally myself.
- She's going to take a little break.
- For how long?
- Excuse me?
- For how long... I feel this sadness for Larry?

These are my comfort shoes. You not understand.
You don't have comfort clothing.

Grandpa have been so touched.

Read the conversations and put in «in», «out», «away» or «to»

- Would you save our place line?
- Why do I have to wait line?
- Because I'm walking .

Well, if we don't leave nine minutes we're not going to be going Larry's funeral, we're going to be going Robert and Sol's coming party.
