

My Trip to Bogotá and Other Places

I arrived in Bogota feeling excited and ready to explore a big city. Unfortunately, many hours of unstoppable rain didn't allow me to go out for a while it rains a lot there, maybe more than in London and I never thought that was possible.

First, I decided to visit a museum. I think museums are now more interesting and enjoyable places than before I visited the Gold Museum and saw the gold from all over Colombia Ancient people used to stick little gold pieces to their clothes during religious activities. They never considered it as a valuable metal. I wonder why people love gold and money so much nowadays, it's nothing special, just a metal. If you die, will you enjoy it?

After that, I stayed with a family I had met at the museum. They invited me to stay with them in Chia. They live on the land that uses to be their parents' farm. That's why they have divided it into smaller parts, which means that they all live close to, next to, opposite or near each other. That is one really close and warm family. The houses are old and badly designed, built by the people themselves in different styles, but all beautiful and amazing to have such a beautiful sense of family was something I had not seen in my whole life.

Finally, we went to a typical restaurant, it was huge, with a fantastic view, and the food I ate was great. This was the part I liked the most Colombian food is magnificent.
