Ha Giang is a mountainous province located in the far north of Vietnam, bordering China. It is a place of breathtaking natural beauty, with towering limestone cliffs, winding rivers, and steep, terraced fields that are a vivid green in the summer months. Ha Giang is also home to a number of ethnic minority groups, including the Hmong, Tay, and Dao, who have preserved their traditional way of life for centuries.

One of the most popular attractions in Ha Giang is the Dong Van Karst Plateau, which was declared a UNESCO Global Geopark in 2010. Visitors can explore the area on foot or by motorbike, taking in the stunning scenery and learning about the geological history of the region. Other popular activities in Ha Giang include trekking, homestays with local families, and visiting the lively Sunday markets in towns like Dong Van and Meo Vac.

Despite its remote location, Ha Giang is becoming an increasingly popular destination for travellers seeking an authentic cultural and outdoor experience in Vietnam.
