

Identify the conditional form.

1. If a farmer introduces a new enterprise into his farming system, he must meet the management demands of the enterprise.
2. If a farm business is established, the establishment stage focuses on production and marketing.
3. If a farming enterprise survives the survival stage, its management should assess the relationship between the income earned and the costs entailed.
4. If the management had redirected the relationship between the farm's income and the costs, the business would have been successful.
5. If the farmer manages to expand production according to the market demands, he will ensure long-term viability.