Gregory: What's up, Gid? The greatest kid in the world. The park is stable, the park is here.

It's not going anywhere. I know I haven't seen Gideon in a while, since he went to school. It's been almost a year, I guess. And where does he show up at when I first see him? Right here in Bryant Park.

That thing I love about Gideon is, for a young man, he's grounded very well. I feel good being around him, you know, he always makes me feel better, especially when I was going through some tough times. And he helped me get through a lot of tough times, you know, he would go out of his way to check on me, see if I was doing okay. Everything that I've got now in New York, like all the success I've had, like somehow, all the people I've met, it comes from the tables right over there, like. Whenever I come out here, I feel like I'm just a regular guy, you know, I'm not a soldier, I'm just a guy that's coming out here to play Ping-Pong and to talk to people, you know? Just say, "I'm here, I'm still alive, and I'm somebody." Yep.
