Marlene: Good morning.

Dave: When did you start dancing, Marlene?

Marlene: I started when I was five. I started going to ballet classes. I was quite good but I wanted to do more than just dance.

Dave: So what did you do?

Marlene: When I was ten, I wrote my first art-dance show. It was called Moods. I performed four short dances to show four moods that I often felt at that time.

Dave: Do you remember what the moods were?

Marlene: Yes, the moods were anger, happiness, love and boredom.

Dave: And what is your latest show called?

Marlene: It's called Portraits and it starts next week. I will dance for two minutes and then stop still for one minute while the audience looks at me like a painting. Then I'll dance for another minute and continue like that for the whole show.

Dave: Fascinating. Don't go away, I'll be asking Marlene more questions after the news.
