

Part of the Water Cycle

The water cycle is what moves Earth's water around the planet to places where plants, animals and humans can use it. Precipitation is one of four main parts of the water cycle.

Condensation

Gas cools and turns to liquid water or ice

Transpiration

Water from plants turns to gas

Precipitation

Water falls in a liquid or solid state

Evaporation

Liquid turns to gas

Evaporation

Liquid turns to gas