

An illustration of three children (two girls and one boy) standing on the left side of a large, complex maze. The children are smiling and appear to be excited. To the right of the maze is a laptop computer. The maze is a black line drawing on a white background, with a single entrance on the left and a single exit on the right.

