THE ENVIRONMENT – LESSON 4 STORY 1

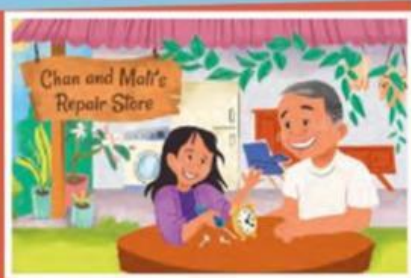

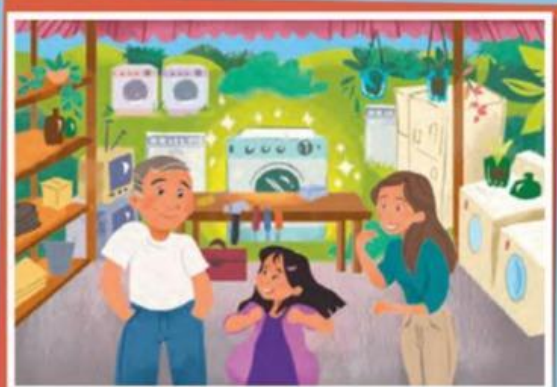

The Repair Store

- 1 When Chan drove home, he always stopped to pick up trash from the side of the road. He threw away the trash, but sometimes he found big things like broken washing machines. He always picked up these big things and took them home with him.

- 2 One day, Chan's granddaughter Mali and her mom knocked on Chan's door at home. "I've just made this cake for you," said Mali. She was usually very quiet, so Chan was always happy when she talked to him. "Thank you, Mali," said Chan. "Would you like to come in?" "Sorry, we have to go home now," said Mali's mom. "Our washing machine has just broken, and I haven't washed Mali's school clothes yet." Chan thought for a minute and then he smiled.

- 3 "Come with me," he said. They all went outside and looked in Chan's yard. "Look!" he said. "Choose any washing machine you like!" Mali and her mom looked around. There were washing machines, TVs, dishwashers, and fridges. They were all clean and sparkling in the sun. "Wow!" said Mali's mom. "Have you repaired all these things?" "Yes," said Chan. "People throw them away, but I like repairing them."

- 4 "Grandpa," said Mali quietly, "can you show me how to repair things too, please?" Next week, there was a new sign in Mali's handwriting in Chan's yard. It said: Chan and Mali's Repair Store. Chan smiled when Mali picked up a screwdriver. "It's fun to repair things," said Mali. "Thank you for showing me, Grandpa."
