The Determination of Two Frogs

Five frogs were playing in the trees of the forest. Suddenly, two of them fell into a deep hole.

"Help!" they cried. "Friends, please help us get out of here!"

"Sorry," their friends replied. "No one can help you. The hole is too deep. You'll never get out, so don't even try. You'll die down there!"

However, the two frogs did not want to give up. "Let's jump as high as we can," one of them suggested. "Ready, steady, here we go! And...again! Not high enough. We have to try harder!" All the while, their friends continued shouting, "Stop trying! You'll never get out of the hole!"

One of the frogs in the hole listened to the discouraging words of his friends. "They are right," he said sadly. "I'll never get out of here." Feeling hopeless, he fell down and died.

The other frog, however, refused to give up. "I must keep trying," he thought. "Never say 'die!' Up, frog, and try!" With every jump, he pushed himself to go higher and higher.

Once again, his friends shouted, "Stop trying! Frogs can't jump out of such a deep hole!" But the determined frog is *deaf (אילם) and thought to himself, "I can do it! I can fly if I want to!"

He leaped once more, and this time he jumped out of the hole. "Here I am!" he said joyfully.
