At A New School

Two months ago, I started attending a new school. I wouldn't have been so nervous if it was a normal school. But it was a boarding school. I'd be living here and I wouldn't be able to see my parents and siblings every day.

I've to say the first 24 hours were the toughest. (33) _____ I looked around the school hall and saw a sea of worried faces.

Every student in the hall was embarking on a new journey. I felt some comfort knowing I wasn't the only one who was feeling scared. (34) _____ I'm sure I missed some important information.

Later, we were divided into groups. My group followed a teacher to our accommodation in one of the hostels. Everyone looked at each other awkwardly at first. (35) _____ Soon everyone was contributing to the conversation. Later, we went to the dining hall and had our meal together. The conversation flowed smoothly.

It's only been several weeks since I started here but I've come a long way. (36) _____ There're no more awkward moments among our group members. I feel more comfortable starting conversations with new people that I've even expanded my circle of friends.

A I listened to many speeches that morning.

B I feel settled in my new environment but I miss home sometimes.

C I felt very alone after my family left.

D One person started talking first.
