Sailing for Teenagers

Sailing is a fun and exciting sport. You don't have to own a boat in order to learn or enjoy it. There are sailing clubs that offer sailing programmes. Some countries have over hundred sailing clubs and you can find them on the coasts, rivers and lakes.

In countries where sailing is popular, clubs offer programmes for teenagers between 12 and 17 years old. One such programme is called 'Out There Sailing' which is available in over 150 sailing centres across Australia. It is designed for teenagers who want to learn sailing for fun. Participants are taught sailing on dinghies and small sailing boats that can fit one, two or three people. Depending on where the centre is located, participants may be taught how to sail on a keelboat, which is a long, narrow boat built for sailing in rivers, shallow lakes or canals, windsurf, do standup paddleboarding or even experience powerboating.

Lessons are conducted in small groups by qualified instructors. Boats and lifejackets are provided too and participants don't need to purchase any special sailing gear or clothes.
