

Weather report: listening practice

Listen to parts of the weather report and fill in the blanks below with ONE word:

Intro:

Good afternoon, everyone!
Here's your latest update on the _____ across various regions. Let's dive into the details and see what Mother Nature has in _____ for us today!

Part 1. London:

Starting with London:
It's _____ outside, and the sky is gray and _____ . This persistent drizzle is creating a damp atmosphere, leading to a somewhat dreary day in the capital. Many Londoners are accustomed to such weather, but it can still be a challenge. If you're planning to _____ out, you might want to bring a warm coat and an umbrella, as the rain isn't expected to let _____ anytime soon. Let's hope it brightens up later! The forecast indicates a possibility of clearer skies this afternoon, which would be a _____ change.

Part 2. Cornwall:

Moving on to Cornwall:
We have a cold and _____ night ahead, with winds howling through the coastal towns. Strong winds are expected to sweep across the region, making it feel even chillier than it actually is. Residents are advised to secure any loose items outside, as the _____ can be quite fierce. This weather can make evenings particularly uncomfortable, with many locals opting to stay indoors. However, for those who enjoy the _____ air, it might be a great opportunity for a scenic walk along the cliffs wrapped in warm layers.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

Part 3. Scotland:

In Scotland:
Temperatures have dropped significantly, and we're seeing _____ on the ground in many areas. The chill in the air is evident, and with the rain turning to _____ in some parts, it's a clear indication that winter isn't too far off. If it gets any colder, we might even see some snow starting to accumulate, especially in the Highlands. This _____ in temperature is a stark reminder of the changing seasons.

Part 4. France:

Over in France:
Sunday was a real _____ , with temperatures soaring to record highs in some regions. Many people took to the parks and beaches to enjoy the sun, but as we transition into the week, the forecast indicates a change. A cooling trend is expected to _____ in later this week, bringing much-needed relief to those who found the heat unbearable. Local meteorologists are predicting a mix of clouds and sunshine, which should create a pleasant environment for outdoor activities without the oppressive _____.

Part 5. Buenos Aires:

Now, let's check in on Buenos Aires:
The city is currently very hot and _____ , with temperatures soaring into the high 30s Celsius. Residents are advised to stay hydrated and avoid _____ outdoor activities during the peak heat of the day. It's the kind of weather that makes sitting in a café with a cool drink highly appealing! Those planning to venture outside should take precautions against the heat, ensuring they wear lightweight clothing and apply _____ regularly.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

Part 6. Coastal regions:

Finally, let's wrap up with a nice _____ morning in the coastal regions: It's been a lovely week so far, with mild temperatures and gentle breezes, and if the weather _____ , we'll go to the coast for the weekend. Families are eagerly planning their trips, hoping to take advantage of the pleasant conditions. Just be mindful of potential rain later on, as the forecast is suggesting some _____ may roll in by Sunday evening.

Outro:

That's all for today's weather update. Stay safe, dress appropriately, and enjoy your day, no _____ the weather!

LIVEWORKSHEETS