Listen and look. There is one example.

Helen's family went to different places at the weekend. Where did each person go?

MAN: Hello, Helen. It was a lovely, sunny weekend wasn't it? Where did you and your family go?

WOMAN: Hello, Alex. Well, everyone wanted to do different things!

MAN: What did your husband Richard do?

WOMAN: He went to a very [ ]. He had to drive for three hours to get there but it was beautiful.

MAN: Did he take any photos?

WOMAN: Yes, he did. They're amazing!

Can you see the letter E? Now you listen and write a letter in each box.

MAN: And what about your daughters? You've got two, haven't you?

WOMAN: That's right.

MAN: So what about your younger daughter, it's Lucy isn't it?

WOMAN: Yes. She went with some friends to a [ ] where they make chocolate!

MAN: Great! Did she enjoy it?

WOMAN: Yes, but of course she ate too much! She brought back some lovely [ ], so everyone was happy!

MAN: That sounds brilliant.

MAN: And what about your other daughter?

WOMAN: Jane? She's nineteen and she usually has to study at the weekend. But she didn't study this weekend!

MAN: What did she do?

WOMAN: It was her best friend's birthday so she went to a [ ]t for noodles on Saturday evening. They wanted to go to [ ] after the meal but they couldn't get any tickets.

MAN: And your son? Did he stay at home playing on the computer again?

WOMAN: No, he didn't. Oliver loves flying. He reads a lot of magazines about it. He went out with his friend on Saturday to look at those enormous new planes.

MAN: Oh, did they go to [ ]?

WOMAN: Yes, they did. His friend's dad took them there.

MAN: That sounds good.

MAN: And what about your cousin, Jim? Isn't he staying with you this week?

WOMAN: Yes, that's right. He went to the old town on Saturday.

MAN: Did he go to [ ]?

WOMAN: Yes, he likes looking for unusual old things.

MAN: Did he buy anything?

WOMAN: Yes, he bought a silver model of a plane!

MAN: And, what did you do, Helen?

WOMAN: I took some books back to [ ] I wanted to go to the hospital to see my friend and her new baby but I didn't have time.

MAN: When will you go?

WOMAN: I'm going to go this evening.
