

Two Friends

- B4 Most people believe that after the Beatles _____ up in 1970, the friendship between John Lennon and Paul McCartney was over. John's song from 1971 "How can you sleep?" was apparently about Paul. BREAK
- B5 However, Paul has always maintained that he remained on good terms and that he still misses Lennon, who _____ tragically in 1980. MURDER
- B6 What is even less well-known is that Paul and John played together again long after The Beatles, arguably the greatest band ever, had played _____ last song. It happened in 1974. THEY
- B7 John _____ music in the studio when Paul turned up with his wife Linda and some other friends. RECORD
- B8 Apparently the drums _____ by Paul on this informal session and they sang classic rock-and-roll songs from the 1950's. Some of it was recorded but the tapes are missing. PLAY
- B9 One thing for sure is that if the original tapes are ever found they would be worth a fortune — as well as clear proof of the _____ friendship of the two men. LAST
- B10 An even _____ and more public proof came in 1997, when Paul named his solo album "Flaming Pie" after a famous joke once told to journalists by his old friend. BIG