Sailing into a new hobby

Martin King

I'm 30 years old and live in the south of England with my wife and two children. A couple of years ago, I started to feel bored with my usual hobbies of cycling and tennis. I tried other sports like golf and basketball, but I wasn't very good. I'm not a fast runner and I'm very bad at football. I couldn't think of anything to do.

One day while watching TV with my wife, I saw something that gave me an idea. There was a programme about sailing that was really interesting. The boat was beautiful and the person who owned it was sailing around the world. I knew I wasn't going to go that far but I liked the idea of fresh air and open sea.

I'm lucky that I live near the sea, so I went to my local sailing club and joined up. At first, it was funny because I didn't even have a boat but at least I could swim well! Luckily, I met many friendly people there who taught me the important things I needed to know. I helped out by keeping the club house tidy and washing boats. I enjoyed that time but without a boat, I began to question if I should stay in the club.

After one year, the most amazing thing happened! My friends in the sailing club had got together and used their own money to buy me a boat. It needed lots of work, but I had learned enough in my time in the club to repair it. I couldn't believe how kind they were. I promised them I would fix it up and sail it myself.

Last month was the first time that I went on the boat alone. It was an amazing feeling to be out on the ocean. I hope that reading this makes you think about trying something new, even if you don't have any experience of it yet. You could end up like me, finding the best hobby you could ever imagine!
