My work with Forest School

by Ajay

This is my second month with the Forest School charity and so far it's going well. The idea of the charity is to organize trips to the country for children who live in towns and cities. We usually work with schools, but sometimes with families and other groups. We take children on short trips to rivers and lakes – and of course forests!

When the children go on these trips, they learn a lot of new skills. I also had to learn new skills so I could help on the trips. For example, I had to learn how to make a fire, but before that, they taught us how to find food and water in different situations. Then I learned how to build a home in the forest. These skills are completely new for most children today because they live in towns and cities. But children really enjoy learning them.

Last weekend, we took a group of 15 ten-year-old children from Baltimore on a trip to a forest. The forest was only about a 20-minute trip from their school by car, but for most of the children, it was their first visit there. It was a very long day – we left their school at 7:15 a.m. and didn't get back until after 5:00 p.m. – but they loved it. Their favorite part was cooking their own lunch over a fire.

An important part of Forest School is learning how to look after the environment. Of course, it's possible to learn this in a classroom, but it's not the same. When you're in the forest and can see all the trees and plants and animals around you, you really understand why the natural world is so important.

I'm really enjoying my work with Forest School. I love spending so much time outside and I have a lot of fun with the children. But for me, the most important thing is making a difference in children's lives. After all, that's why I do charity work.

- 1 What does Forest School give children?
A  A chance to travel to other cities
B  A chance to experience nature
C  A chance to meet other children
- 2 What did Ajay learn to do first?
A  Build a home
B  Make a fire
C  Find food and water
- 3 How many children went on the trip last weekend?
A  10
B  15
C  20
- 4 What did the children like most about the trip last weekend?
A  Making food for themselves outside
B  Visiting the forest for the first time
C  Spending all day away from school
- 5 What is Ajay's main reason for working with Forest School?
A  To have a fun experience
B  To learn more about nature
C  To make children's lives better
- 6 What is the main purpose of the text?
A  To explain the importance of the natural world
B  To suggest how young people can learn new skills
C  To describe a personal experience of charity work
